I am a junior camera operator based in London and have recently graduated from the University of Westminster with a Film Degree. I have worked on several short films, documentaries, and music videos, specializing in the camera or lighting departments. I have strived to create a professional workflow for each role I took on. I also did a month-long internship in the Amazon rainforest and also with Sea Shepherd in Mexico. Where I helped with the overall production of several educational, and anti-illegal fishing films. That includes camera assisting, drone operating, and contributing to the scripts and logistics of the production.

In 2020 I directed a documentary called 'Recalling Home', which tells my personal story of living abroad and outlines the political unrest that had taken over my home country. As my grad film production, I was Director Of Photography on a naturalist documentary observing the life of a fishing crew in Cornwall, which was predominantly filmed at sea. It further expanded my fascination with working in a variety of environments.
